Provident Life and Trust Co.

OF PHILADELPHIA

N. W. COR. FOURTH AND CHESTNUT STS. (NOS. 401-409)

Insurance in Force, $128,740,464.00

Assets, $40,037,989.76

EVIDENCE of the skillful and faithful management of this Company is found in its exceedingly low expense rate, and the remarkably favorable rate of mortality. For the whole period of its existence, the death rate has been only .61 of the rate indicated by the authoritative tables.

The organization of the Company affords a strong guarantee of safe management for the future. There is the same need for care and intelligent discrimination in selecting a life insurance company that there is in selecting investments for a trust fund. The question of the first importance in either case is the question of absolute security.

Young Men should not defer becoming insured until they are married. The protection of life insurance will certainly be needed, and the earlier the policy is commenced, the lower is the cost during the whole term. A young man who is safely insurable to-day may not be able to secure a policy hereafter on account of technical impairment of health, which, while perhaps not seriously affecting his general health, makes him ineligible for insurance. The money paid for insurance by a young man while he is single is in many cases an investment which would not otherwise have been made. It is an opportunity of showing affection for his mother to make the policy payable to her until he is married, when it can be transferred to his wife. Information cheerfully furnished in person or by letter.

FOUR REGULAR COURSES ARE OFFERED, LEADING TO DEGREES

- I. THE COURSE IN ARTS
- II. THE COURSE IN LETTERS
- III. THE COURSE IN SCIENCE
- IV. THE COURSE IN ENGINEERING

DURING the current year the enrollment of students has been greater than at any previous time since the discontinuance of the preparatory department. Every room in the college has been occupied. The opening of the New Gymnasium for Young Men has marked a new era in the college life, and other material improvements are in prospect. New courses have been offered in English and in Modern Languages, and a new professorship in the department of History will next year make possible additional courses in History, Economics, and Social Science.

Life of William Hyde Appleton.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM HYDE APPLETON is a native of New England, and belongs to the well-known Boston family of that name. He is a graduate of Harvard, where he received the degrees of A. B., A. M., and LL. B. After having been tutor in Greek at Harvard for two years he went abroad, and spent two years in study, chiefly at German Universities. He has often visited Europe since, on one occasion spending a year in Greece.

Dr. Appleton came to Swarthmore in 1872, as Professor of Greek and German. Later he relinquished the latter department, continuing in charge of the Greek, and taking up Anglo-Saxon and Early English. In 1889 he was appointed Acting President, during the absence of Dr. Magill in Europe, having served for some years as Vice-President and having received the degree of Ph. D. from the College in the previous year. In 1890 he was elected to the presidency but resigned the position at the end of one year, preferring the work of his professorship. In 1893 he published "Greek Poets in English Verse," a volume which received a most favorable reception. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society; the Union League of Philadelphia; the Classical Club of Philadelphia; the Harvard Club of New York; the Society of American Authors, etc.; also, of the College fraternity Chi Psi, and of the Harvard chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

ITS ORIGIN AND SOME NOTES UPON ITS EARLY HISTORY.

BY EDWARD H. MAGILL, LL. D.

CHAPTER VII.

THE destruction and reconstruction of the College in its thirteenth year (1881-82), having been considered in the last chapter, we now proceed with the work as continued in the new building, after the return from its temporary quarters in Media, in the autumn of 1882.

FOURTEENTH YEAR; 1882-83.—The regular time for the re-opening was on the 12th of Ninth month, but two weeks more were found necessary to complete the building and equip it for the reception of the students. The time was therefore fixed on the 25th, that being the anniversary of the dismissal of the students on the morning of the destruction of the building by fire. The number of students who entered the College classes this year was 82: Seniors, 18; Juniors, 13; Sophomores, 15, and Freshmen, 36. The number in the Preparatory School was 192, distributed as follows: College Preparatory Class, 56; Class A, 63; Class B, 38; and Class C, 35. The only changes in the Faculty for this year were the appointment of Anna W. Frost Clapp, Matron, in place of Caroline S. Wood, resigned, and the resignation of George L. Maris, Professor of Theory and Practice of Teaching. Professor Wm. H. Appleton returned at this time, after a year's absence for study and travel abroad, and resumed the duties of his professorship. The average age of the new students admitted this year was one year greater than heretofore, and the hope of many was renewed that the time was gradually approaching when Swarthmore would become a College only, without the addition of a Preparatory School, but time proved that this was to be a matter of slow development. It was about this time that the principle of admitting students without examination, on presenting certificates of qualification from the principals of certain schools, to be named by vote of the Faculty, with the approval of the Committee on Instruction, was introduced. Five schools were admitted to the list to which this principle was extended.

The new College building being now completed and equipped for its work, and the expenses of reconstruction and equipment, amounting to about $270,000, having been fully paid, the friends of the College were invited to the inauguration of the restored College building on Fifth-day evening, First month 18th, 1883. Free tickets on the railroad were sent to the friends of the College, a lunch was provided, and all of the rooms were opened for the inspection of visitors, and it was an occasion of great rejoicing that the disaster of the fire had been so promptly met by the energy of the Building Committee, supported by liberal subscriptions, and all of the indebtedness incurred fully paid.

It was during this year, for the first time, that a special room in the College was set apart to be called "The Alumni Room," also for the use, if desired, of the Somerville Literary Society. The new Science Building was completed this year, and opened to students in the departments of Chemistry, Physics, and Civil and Mechanical Engineering, making our College compare favorably with other colleges in this country in these departments, being equalled by few, and surpassed by none except some universities and special schools of science. A new schedule of prices of tuition was now adopted, making the charge $300 a year in Class C; $350 in the other classes of the Preparatory School, and $450 in the College classes; with a reduction of $100 a year in all of these classes to children of members of our Religious Society.

FIFTEENTH YEAR; 1883-84.—The year 1883-84 was opened with eleven members of the Faculty; Joseph W. Teets, Professor of Elocution, and Elizabeth C. Miller, Assistant Professor of Rhetoric and Composition, having been added to the Faculty of the previous year.

During the year just passed the Board of Managers met with the loss of two of its most active and valuable members since the opening of the College, Samuel Willets and Rachel T. Jackson. It is well known that but for the liberal financial aid of Samuel Willets, seconded by the unwearying efforts of Edward Parrish, the first President, Swarthmore College would hardly have become a reality, at least for many years; and from the first inception of the work no manager had been more earnest or more deeply interested in the establishment of a Friends' college than Rachel T. Jackson. Through her long experience in educational matters, in connection with her husband, John Jackson, a name so familiar and so dear to all Sharon students, her counsels were especially valuable, and had deservedly great influence with those associated with her in the work.

The whole number of students this year reached 289, a greater number than was ever before in the College at any one time. But of this large number, 221 were in the Preparatory School, and but 88 in the College classes. Thus, the day seemed still distant when the College was to be well filled without the presence of a Preparatory School. Eight schools were reported this year as permitted to enter students without examination, on presenting certificates of qualification from their principals.

The Library of the College had now reached, since its total destruction by fire two years before, about 5,700 volumes, the funds for which had been largely contributed by the Alumni Association; and an earnest appeal was made to the Alumni at this time to contribute towards the maintenance of the Library, that the instructors and students might have access to the latest and best works at all times, and that the excellent working collection that was lost might soon be replaced. Nor did this appeal fall upon deaf or inattentive ears. An active working committee of the Alumni was soon in the field, and their labors being much encouraged by a liberal conditional subscription of several thousand dollars by Clement M. Biddle, a permanent fund of $10,000 has since been secured, the interest of which is now devoted yearly to the increase of the books of which the Library most stands in need. The College society libraries were also reported at this time as numbering collectively nearly 2,000 volumes.

Earnest efforts were made this year to restore our excellent working museum of Natural History, collected through all the history of the College thus far with so much care by Dr. Joseph Leidy. Some of us well remember that the day after the fire, when he started from our station up the asphaltum walk, having been called from his home in Philadelphia by the startling news of the morning, as he looked up at the blackened walls of the College, and the great empty water tank hanging upon the ruin, he said, mournfully, "Ten years of my life gone!" Many specimens were sought out and purchased to supply this great loss, by funds furnished by Joseph and Anna T. Jeans, and contributions of material for the museum were liberally made by William S. Vaux, Professor F. A. Genth, C. S. Bennett, John Hartmann, Joseph Wilcox, and Edward Farnum.

The report of the Managers was unusually full this year, taking up, in unusual detail, the various departments of study, all of which are represented to have been in a very satisfactory condition.

We have now reached, in this brief outline, which may, we trust, form some slight basis for a fuller and more complete history of the College in later years, the close of the first fifteen years after the opening of the College in '69, and beginning as we did with a large Preparatory School, and only one small College class, the Freshmen, we feel that a great work was accomplished in those fifteen years by the earnest efforts of the early founders; but in the fifteen years that have followed, from '84 to '99 inclusive, the progress has been far greater, and the present condition and bright prospects of the College, with its strong Faculty of fifteen, its 208 College students, and no longer burdened with a Preparatory School, are great causes for gratitude to Him from whom all blessings flow; and we can now confidently say that the wish publicly expressed at the opening of the College, by one of its early founders, that it might yet be found that they had "builded better than they knew," has been abundantly realized.

INASMUCH as Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved classmate, Paschall Hall Chapman, therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Class of 1901, wish to express our sorrow at the loss of so earnest a worker and so loyal a classmate; and be it

Resolved, That we desire to express our admiration for the cheerfulness and fortitude displayed by him in the face of a most trying ordeal, and that we extend to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy; and

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his parents, and that they be published in The Swarthmore Phoenix.

History of 1901.

PURPOSE, as Macaulay says, to set before you the achievements, the many victories, the few defeats of the Class of 1901, without respect to age, color, or previous condition of servitude.

As the 1900 HALCYON so touchingly relates, we set foot within these College halls on the twenty-second of September, 1897, a large class of fifty-nine members. With characteristic energy we set to work to organize, and after some slight and easily suppressed attempts at interruption by the Sophomores, we took our place among Swarthmore classes.

Without delay we began on a long series of victories on field, track, and platform. Nineteen hundred we defeated in foot-ball, hockey, base-ball, lacrosse, and the Gym. contest, besides winning the College championship in basket-ball. Our oratorical team won the President's Prize from the Sophomores, and with the money placed the picture of Ex-President De Garmo in Parrish Hall.

In Sophomore year we were rather disposed to rest on our laurels, but the entrance of a large and conceited lot of Freshmen reminded us that we had a duty to perform in educating them. The 1902 foot-ball team succeeded in staving off defeat for two 15-minute halves, and on the track 1901 was defeated by a slight score, but a rout of the Freshmen in base-ball left honors evenly divided for The Phoenix Cup. In lacrosse and basket-ball we again won the College championships, and with the President's Prize, secured this time from 1902, we placed the casts in the dining room and the Winged Victory in the parlor.

Our history, apart from contests, has been eventful and creditable. In Freshman year our hats were "lifted" by envious Sophomores, but—do you notice we are wearing them yet? Nineteen hundred and two may remember their Class picture that was not taken, our toastmaster who was not kidnapped, our music that was not spoiled, their menus that were not as they were ordered. You are a great Class, 1902; go, paint your numerals on the moon.

And now, in Junior year, we have devoted our energies to getting out our HALCYON, and to assisting our allies to nearly as brilliant successes as we ourselves have attained at Swarthmore. We can afford to be generous, 1903. There is a place ready for you beside us,—make yourselves worthy of it.

GRAMMATEUS.

WHEREAS, Our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to take unto Himself our loving friend and classmate, Alma Hull; be it

Resolved, That we, the Class of 1902 of Swarthmore College, have heard with deepest sorrow the announcement of the sudden death of our dear classmate;

Resolved, That by her death our Class and our College has sustained a severe and irreparable loss. She was conscientious and cheerful; sincere in all her undertakings; always willing, always thoughtful, always helpful. She was a loyal classmate, an earnest student; a true girl, living bravely, trustingly, and faithfully; marking her life with hopefulness and happiness and purity of purpose. Her classmates will ever cherish her name, and treasure the memory of her friendship;

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathies to her family and kindred in their sad bereavement;

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, and that a similar copy be offered for publication in The Swarthmore Phoenix.

To the Freshman Class.

HAVE called you together, young people, in order to present to you some matters which it is necessary, and at once customary, to lay before the incoming Freshman Class upon the opening of the Collegiate year.

It is important that such a meeting be called, and that each and every one of you be punctilious in the observance of the requirement; that each one of you make it a point that my wishes be carried out to the letter, carried out to the letter!

Much stress is being laid upon the observance of the more regular requirements of the institution, and, in fact, I shall take stringent measures to compel full attendance at all required gatherings.

One of the most necessary factors in the life of the institution is that cheerful obedience be made to the regulation that requires each and every one to attend the religious exercises held in the Meeting-house on the morning of each First-day. And should any one absent himself without being properly registered, I will require that he give me a full explanation of his non-attendance.

Another matter I wish to lay before you is the necessity of obtaining permission from the Dean or myself for absence from the institution. I shall read to you a minute from the regulations of the corporation: "Freshmen and Sophomores under the age of twenty-one should — permission — President — absence — Vice-President — properly registering — after work —. All others — registering — President's office." I wish to urge upon you the necessity of carrying out this regulation, the importance of a punctilious observance of it.

Another matter, before I dismiss you. It is customary for all to attend the regular morning collection. The Registrar will tick off the students as they enter the room. At this exercise all are expected to get into what the Friends call the quiet; get into the quiet. It is necessary that no correspondence or studies be brought into the room to divert the minds of the students in the few moments of silence before taking up the more serious work of the day. Now, won't you make it a point to attend to these matters, so that we will not be compelled to be continually looking you up?

Oh, just a moment,—one further matter before I dismiss you: There shall be no use of musical instruments in the rooms during study hours, nor shall there be any boisterousness, jostling, howling, or stamping in the halls and corridors. I do not care to leave my work in the office to look after that individual who persists in the petty annoyances that characterize the rowdy, the rowdy element.

After I had consulted with the Dean, the Faculty decided to lay these matters before you. In the future the Dean will meet with the young women of all classes on the evening of each Fifth-day. The young men will gather with the other young men at the President's meeting on the same night.

I think that is all I have to say to you.

P. REX.

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society.

---

THE Scientific Society was organized in March, 1895, and later received the name of The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society of Swarthmore College. Its object is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. There are five sciences included in the work of the Association: Astronomy, Biology and Physiography, Chemistry, Engineering, and Physics. The programs of the meetings consist of a report from the instructors in each of the above departments concerning the recent discoveries in the respective sciences. Papers are then read by different members on topics of scientific interest, followed by an open discussion by the Society. The interesting character of these programs is shown by the full attendance at the meetings, from both the College and the borough. The Executive Committee consists of a committee of three from each department,—one instructor and two students.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as the students and officers of the College. The meetings are held in Science Hall, on the first Third-day evening of each month during the College year.

The Young Friends' Association.

HIS Association is intended primarily for students, instructors, and other members of our College community; but a considerable number of the neighbors are members, and are identified with its work.

The objects of the organization are two-fold: First, the study of the history, literature, and principles of the Society of Friends, and second, the consideration of the vital questions of religion and spirituality which we meet in our everyday life.

The regular meetings are held in the College parlor, on the evening of the third First-day of every month during the College year.

Some Notes on Athletics.

BY PHYSICAL DIRECTOR CUMMINGS.

HIS has been an important year in the history of this department at Swarthmore. In the fall, all came with expectation and a strong desire to see our new Gymnasium, which they had heard so much about. In this they were disappointed, as fate seemed against any move to hurry along the work. However, the walls were up, and we could conjecture as to the beautiful interior which was to follow.

Then all eyes were turned to the foot-ball field, to "draw a line" on the new men,—and a sturdy set they were, something to gladden the eye of a coach. As the season progressed it was found that they were of the right sort of material to develop into strong players. This to start with, and a great amount of thorough coaching by a star man, gave us one of the best, if not the strongest, teams that ever represented the College. Lafayette caught us early while "green," otherwise a season of clean scores would have resulted. In the last two (which were the important) games the team was not pushed to win. On November 18th the spell which had been hanging over us was broken, and now certain things are not considered impossible.

From the end of the foot-ball season it was a case of eternal wait until late in the winter ere we could get into our Gymnasium. During this time cross-country runs by day and moonlight kept down our weight, and, along with much skating, made life pleasant for an athlete. A word here about our hockey team, which was made up of strong players and could have made a good record. Our principal rival thought it best not to play us a game, else we might have had something to boast of in this line. An attempt was also made to arrange a game with one of the crack New York teams, but could not be played on account of warm weather.

The late start of Gymnasium periods, and the unusual amount of good skating, limited the work of our new Gym. team, which, however, should make a good showing later on. Considerable attention has been paid to special individual work which comes under the head of medical gymnastics. Each man is especially examined and his weak points made known to him, and special work given for the same. The only way that we can judge of our condition and strength is by testing it occasionally with correct methods. This is done for each student and advice given.

Our lacrosse prospects are good for this year. Some thirty-five men are enjoying the game. An unusually large schedule has been arranged.

The prospects for our track team are not brilliant, as we have no stars here now, but a determined effort will be made to get out a large number of men. Last year the track team was allowed to drop below the usual standard, and it will require a great amount of work to bring it up again.

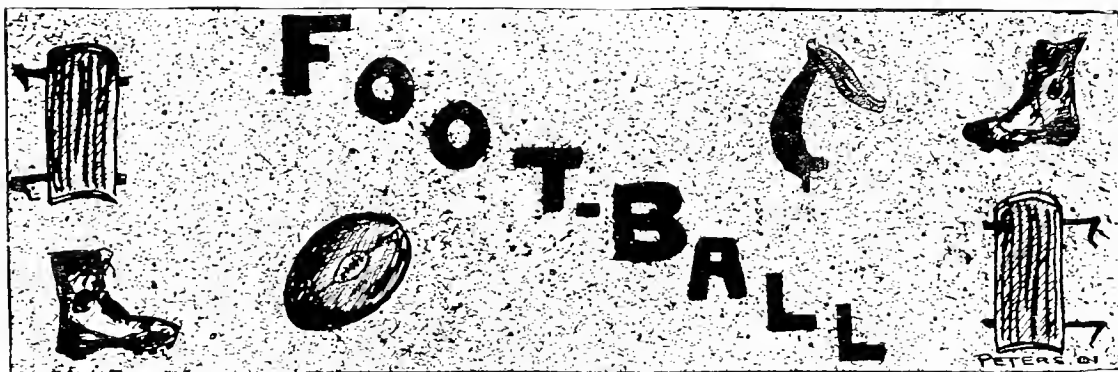

In tennis we have a new man who will, no doubt, "hold his end up" with the best in the colleges, and this will give us an important standing.

Here at Swarthmore we have almost too much of a representation for the size of the College, standing as we do in lacrosse and foot-ball on a par with institutions whose student body outnumbers us greatly, all the way up to five thousand men; but our little ninety will be heard from. It is doubtful if any institution in the country of this number can show as good a standing. One of the disadvantages which we labor under is in having the same few choice men on all or nearly all the athletic teams. It also happens that some of these are also in the musical clubs. As these all require much practice to bring them to the state of perfection which they have shown, it will be seen that they are not limited.

The departure of one of the best trainers in the country left our College in a bad way. The next Director hardly had time to "break" himself in; while at the present time still another new man is being broken in with a vain attempt to fill on a small scale the position held by "Doc" Shell.

At this late date it would be an insult to the intelligent reader to try to convince him of the value of physical training; so, no attempt will be made,—a thing rather necessary a few years back. The pale, weak youth is not seen at Swarthmore, and if all indulge in plenty of out-door work it will preclude the possibility of such.

W. SINNOTT CUMMINGS.

Through the far Norwegian mountains, where the pines stood strong and dark,
Where the tempest wrenched in fury at the granite ledges stark,
Where the storm-clouds never yielded to the glory of the sun—
Ere the flight of Time was reckoned, or the march of man begun—
Came a maiden, straight and slender, in the majesty of youth,
With a shining crown upon her brow, and on it blazoned "Truth."

And she gleamed along the ranges, and before her as she went
Icy mist and darkness vanished, sullen, fearful, impotent.
And she sang through all the valleys, and behind her as she came,
Followed warmth and starry flowers, like a wave of running flame.
And where'er she passed, the boulders, scattered over moor and fen,
Stirred like deer, and leapt and quivered, warmed and softened into men.

This, the legend from the Northland, long ago in sagas sung,
When the reign of force was potent, and the race of gods was young.
Still the noble maiden sings along the meadows as of old,
And she raises clods to heroes with her flashing crown of gold.
Glad the sons of men come thronging to her shrine upon the hill,
And they lay their souls before her to be moulded to her will.

From the fire of her altar she shall bid them drink and go
Where the eager passion of their faith shall set the world aglow.
To the utmost shores of ocean they shall urge their fearless way;
They shall dig earth's hidden treasures to lie open to the day;
They shall chain the lightning closer for the thousand needs of man.
And the blind of heart shall learn from them the Father's mighty plan.

They shall sweep the harp of language with the skilled musician's art,
And its melody shall comfort every broken human heart.
They shall stay the tyrant's progress, they shall bid his slaves go free,
Haply shall they teach the nations how to die for liberty.
And the Truth they loved shall soothe them when the storm of life is past,
And their God and hers shall lead them gently homeward at the last.

Social Hour : A Sketch.

---

HE.—“Good evening, Miss —.”

SHE.—“Oh, good evening; is that you?”

HE.—“Er—yes. Do you—are you—that is, will you—may I give you the—may I have the pleasure of—to go into—I mean during Social Hour?”

SHE.—“I don’t understand.”

HE.—“I want to go into the parlor with you.”

SHE.—Oh, I see; certainly.” (They wander into the parlor and appropriate a “pet,” talking meanwhile.)

SHE.—“I really am so ashamed of myself; I think sometimes I must be quite stupid, or hard of hearing, or—”

HE (gallantly).—“Oh, I’m sure you are not deaf.”

SHE (weakly).—“So good of you to say so.”

(A pause.)

HE.—“Beautiful evening, isn’t it? But so warm, don’t you think?”

SHE.—“Yes, very; though I thought before dinner it looked a little like rain.”

HE.—“Yes, or snow. It may be perfectly clear to-morrow, though, of course.”

SHE.—I suppose so.”

(A pause.)

HE.—“By the way, were you at meeting yesterday?”

SHE.—“Yes, I was there; were you?”

HE.—“Yes, but I didn’t see you.”

SHE.—“Nor I you; where do you sit?”

HE.—“I’m not exactly sure, but it is somewhere near the front on the west side. I always know which seat it is by a tall Junior girl who sits in the same row in the middle. I always sit next the wall.”

SHE.—“Did you say it was up the west aisle, and opposite a tall Junior.”

HE.—“Yes, exactly.”

SHE.—“Why, that’s the way I find my place. We must sit on the same bench!”

HE.—“And I never saw you!”

SHE.—“Nor I you! Isn’t it funny?”

HE.—“Isn’t it?”

(They laugh consumedly. Then a pause.)

SHE.—“President Birdsall spoke well, didn’t he?”

HE.—“Yes, and so did Dr. Magill.”

SHE.—“Yes, and Mrs. Bond, too. I do so love to hear Mrs. Bond read; she has such a lovely voice, and what she says is so—so—.”

HE.—“Prosimetrical?”

SHE (vaguely).—“Yes, and—and—and nice. Don’t you think so?”

HE.—“Yes.”

(Another pause.)

HE (starting suddenly).—“Pardon me!”

SHE (also starting suddenly).—“I beg your pardon!”

HE.—“I thought you spoke.”

SHE.—“I asked you what you said.”

HE.—“I didn’t say anything.”

SHE.—“Neither did I.”

HE.—“Oh, pardon me.”

SHE.—“Certainly.”

(During the ensuing pause Dean Bond begins to gather her work, and our friends rise and prepare to tear themselves away.)

HE.—“Why, how very short the evening has been, hasn’t it?”

SHE.—“Yes, hasn’t it? I have enjoyed myself so much, Mr. ——. Really, I—I—it has been very short, really.”

HE.—“Yes, hasn’t it? I never knew time to pass so quickly. I—I am very much obliged to you for—for—you are—you have— Thank you for—for—”

(Providentially the Dean approaches.)

HE.—“Good-night.”

SHE.—“Good-night.”

Appeal from Room H.

---

My plaidie hae gane frae my class-room,
My plaidie hae gane frae my chair,
Oh, who will gae up on the telegraph wire
And bring back my plaidie that’s there.

A Mystery.

---

There was sadness in the college,
The day that Emma Fell,
For she’d gained a popularity
Without a parallel.

So sorrow filled our bosoms,
Our grief no tongue can tell,
When rumors reached our College halls
Announcing Emma Fell.

The asphaltum wasn’t slippery,
And she bore herself right well;
I cannot yet quite comprehend
The way that Emma Fell.

Perhaps in the hereafter,
When the heavenly anthems swell,
To my own satisfaction I
Shall know how Emma Fell.

It's a Way we have at Swarthmore.

---

Strikes, strikes, strikes,

In that cold gray college co-ed,
On the paper my pen will stutter
To keep them straight in my head.

'Twould be well for the soldier lad
Had he no rival in play,
Oh, well for the Michigan boy
That things go right in his way.

And the stately Edson goes on
In a fair and comely manner;
While tardy George does walk
Where Helen waves her banner.

And even Philosopher Joe,
On fair Fanny doth hourly muse,
And in Ed Worth's numerous cases,
I here the count do lose.

Strikes, strikes, strikes,
From Freshman to Senior year,
The variety show is hard to excel,
But the price you pay is dear.

---

Mrs. Bond's advice to the Freshman girls: "Seek knowledge, but no ledge."

Revery of a 1900.

---

Birds they say return in springtime,
To nests they once have known,
Back upon the wings of gladness,
Back to trees whence they have flown.

As I watched the springtime's coming,
Watch its glories everywhere,
Skies grow blue, and grass grows verdant,
Whilst the birds flit through the air.

Thoughtfully I sit reflecting,
Low I murmur, "When, ah! when,
Will the Hawke return to greet us?
Will the Robbins come again?"

---

"Two Lenten resolutions
I have made," she gayly sang,
"The other's to quit jollying,
The one's to swear off slang.
Now, I stick to proper language,
Even when I'm with the gang.
Indeed it is no rubber,
I have sworn off using slang."

The Mirror's Secrets.

---

Years have come and gone and classes with them, but I stay always. My smile to the Freshmen of to-day is as warm as it was to the Freshmen of a decade ago. I never wear out, yet I get more use than any other one thing in College. It is to me that the students come for the truth, to see themselves as I see them. Some are blissfully satisfied, after looking in my frank face, but there are others whom my honesty hurts. Yet no one will pass me unheeded, for some unknown attraction seems to draw them—I have never seen myself. A long look or a dry glance tells me that their thoughts are ever of me.

Little Doctor Woods scans me before donning his overcoat for the city; and when Bessie or our musical George so often come late to breakfast, I am not neglected. In fact, I hold the secret of many a tardiness, for people would rather meet me alone. My little cousins upstairs are too small for Eddie D., so he too comes to me. And Pansy Cassel, and Carl and numberless others are my friends:—Uncle Dave isn't, though. Stray locks and crooked neckties never pass me by (just watch the hands go up to re-arrange).

'Tis I whom you greet at your coming, and I with whom you leave your adieux. Guests think well of the place straightway on entering the doors, because I face them—flattered by their own smile. What wisdom did our builders show in this!

Now you know why in the evening the boys all collect in the hall by the "pets." The poor "pets" are accused of attracting them when really I am guilty! I have told you my secrets—now try to take my friends if you can, but you can't.

Absent from Room H.

W. BARR.—He may as well remain absent for all he does when here.

E. WEEKS, clerk.—He cannot get work done if he is absent very often.
S. J. C.

E. H. W. Again.

"Along the stream of life we swiftly glide."

The Senior said in accents firm and steady.

"Oh, that's all right," the Sophomore girl replied.

"Just keep the stream, but leave for me the Eddy."

Song of the Ex-Exec.

Respectfully dedicated to the present members of the Executive Committee.

---

Within her room she sits alone,
And quietly she reflects,
Contentment beams from out her eyes,
She is one of the ex-execs.

She thinks of student government,
And the officers it elects,
But ever comes that happy thought,
"I am one of the ex-execs."

No longer feared by students of
The male or female sex,
She revels in the consciousness,
She is one of the ex-execs.

The young man in the alcove,
(Though she's not whom he expects)
Will greet her with a friendly smile,
Since she's one of the ex-execs.

The very thought that she'd "report"
He scornfully rejects,
How different from the time when she
Was one of the "old ex-ecs!"

Henceforth to her old title,
They will annex an X,
No longer one of the XX,
She is one of the XXX.

No more co-education will,
Her weary spirit vex,
All joy to her successor!
(Signed)

ONE OF THE XXX.

The Fatal Pun.

Legend of the Central Matron.

---

At the doorway of the college,
Of the college we call Swarthmore,
In the country of the Quakers,
Sat the ancient central matron,
Reading text-books made of German,
Text-books of the language Français,
Or at crochet mildly knitting,
Anon quiet nappies taking,
Incidentally answering door-calls,
When the hasty boy from Yarnall's,
From accommodating Yarnall's,
Or the man from Wanamaker's,
Or perchance an humble stranger,
Wanted quickly an admittance,
Answered she with stately leisure,
When the bell rang five or six times,
Rang through quiet hall and class-room,
With reverberating clangor,
Causing mirth to wicked students,
And to teachers consternation,
Giving rise to exclamation:
"Asleep again is Caroline."

The fair co-ed. sat weeping in the gloaming,
And pouring dust and ashes on her head,
While Remembrance through the dismal past went roaming.

And she mourned aloud, and this is what she said:

"This world is but a snare and a delusion,
A phantom of the visionaries' brain,
And life is nought but turmoil and confusion
And happiness is transitory, vain.

"For he who was my love has gone forever,
Has left me to repentance and despair,
And—woe is me!—'twas through my mad endeavor
To propagate a joke quite new and rare.

"We sat upon the parlor 'pet' together,
And chattered of the topics of the day;
And while he talked of past and future weather,
I sought for something dazzling to say.

"Oh, tell the meaning of the sigh you uttered,
My gentle love in accents wild implored;
Then turned and fled, for soft and low I muttered,
'Twas but the groaning of the festive bored.' "

Nameful Verse.

---

As curfew's Bell was slowly ringing
O'er the Waters soft and clear,
And Decey Eve's dense mantle, falling,
Seemed to clasp and hold me near.

I stood one day down by the seashore,
Looking out upon the deep,
And the Barr reaching out from the land,
Caused the waves to moan and weep.

But while I was thus standing, gazing,
A skiff drew near to the strand;
A Scaman old, plying Blades of oak,
Approaching, essayed to land.

Now when he had come up to meet me,
I saw that his Beard was white,
And his step was slow and measured,
But his eye was gleaming bright.

To the right of us lay the village,
Which nestled Under-a-hill;
And the Taylor's shop could just be seen,
With the wheel H'right's by the mill.

The town Smith also had his small Booth;
(And a Comly man was he,
Whose word was "Good as his Bond," they said,
His shrewdness Keen as could be.)

Then I followed the old man townward,
For he seemed to know the Way;
I, with Lightfoot and heart skipped along
Like a Lamb on summer's day.

And he told me many good stories,
Of Young men who were in Love,
Of some who are shoveling Coals now,
Of some "in the Hall above."

But while my old friend was speaking,
Darkness had come like a pall;
It settled down as a thick, black Fogg
On village, Brovenfield, and all.

When I left the boatman, he gave me
As a Mark of his goodwill
A Thistle, plucked by his own Gatc's side,
At his cottage on the hill.

Call me early in the morning, call me early, William dear,
For I’m going to call upon the boys without a bit of fear;
I’m going to visit them, in state, this bright November day,
For I am the Keane and the May, William, I am the Keane and the May.

The Foot-ball Season.

---

Snowed our loyal Alumni under,
With Lafayette our sole defeat;
Against Ursinus our poorest showing,
Rubbed it in on Delaware.
Then were Hopkins easy victims;
Helpless found we old Dutch Rutgers;
Merry carnival with Stevens;
Out at Carlisle won a hard score.
Rousing victory ‘gainst poor Haverford,
Ended boasts of F. and M.

Wisdom from Science Hall.

We must visualize the fundamental concepts.

I do not believe in playing foot-ball with mathematics for intellectual strength.

Ah, you will have to come to that by an intellectual process of assimilation.

The dictionary is the graveyard of the language, hence, most university students are ghosts of departed spirits.

One’s art is the alphabet of the individual with which he inevitably spells out his inner character.

An inspiration is only the act of clearly beholding yourself in an intellectual mirror.

Soliloquy

(Imploring Shakespeare's Forgiveness.)

---

To sign or not to sign, that is the question
Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer
The grins and gestures of outrageous colleagues,
Or to take the pencil 'gainst a sea of troubles
And by our signing face them? To sign, to eat
Once more; and when we eat, to say we end
The hunger and the thousand natural pangs
The flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. To sign, too much,
Too much, perchance the 'steenth, ay there's the rub;
For by that signature what threats may come
When our paternal learns how much we're late
Must give us pause; there's the respect
That makes the signatures of so much weight.

For who would bear the whips and scorn of Prex,
The pater's wrath, and Dean Bond's worried glance,
The pangs of efforts lost, and wasted haste,
The certainty of trouble, and the spurns
That tardy fellows of the unkind ones take,
When one to all this might a quietus put,
By just mere bluffing. Who would trouble take
To stop and sign upon the tablet there,
But that the dread of something like a "squelch,"
The unremitting glances from whose frown
The bluffer ne'er recovers, weakens the will,
And makes us rather face the ills from home
Than fly to others that we know too well.
Thus conscience does make signers of us all.

“The Workers.”

(Scene—Phanix room. Time—Wednesday evening. Room in darkness. Enter at intervals the Staff.)

THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF.—“Is there a match here anywhere?”

ED. WILLIAMS.—“Oh, really, now, Gas, you shouldn’t ask embarrassing questions like that.

GILK.—“Here’s one.” (Lights gas.)

GEORGIE.—“Are we all here, because really I think—”

GILK (interrupting hastily).—“No, there is one away.”

JENKS.—“We’re all here, there are eleven here; he’s begging for Grace.”

ED.-IN-CHIEF.—“The meeting will please come to order. Miss Rogers, will you read the minutes?” (Staff nerve themselves for the shock.)

FRED (reading).—“Meeting was called to order May, ’99—March, 1900, inclusive. Discussion by the Staff. Adjournment.

“Secretary, W. ROGERS.”

GAS.—“If there are no objections the minutes stand adopted as read.”

MAY.—“I think the minutes had better be condensed into seconds.”

GAS.—“Well, the meeting is open for discussion. Has the Business Manager any report?”

BILL.—“Well, I might say—”

FOGG.—“So you might but you had better not.”

GILK.—“You’d better not.”

BUS. MAN. (begins).—“That’s all right, as I was going to say—”

MAY.—“Oh, did you hear about Betty Booth and Miss Farquhar?”

GILLY.—“What was it?”

MAY.—“Well, the day she was introduced, Miss Farquhar said, ‘Miss Booth? Oh, I suppose you are Levis Booth’s sister. Well, I just directed a wrapper to him to-day for Roger,’ and Betty screamed, ‘Did he leave that old thing over here?’”

JENKS.—“Oh, that’s good!”

EMILY.—“Mr. Editor, don’t you think that is rather personal?”

GILLY.—“That would be mean, don’t put that in.”

BUSINESS MANAGER.—“Well, as I was going to say—”

GILK.—“And about those teachers at the circus last spring.”

GAS.—“Well—e—e that’s a—a very good, but I hope the members will re-member.”

FRED.—“That’s a joke; put him in the ink-well.”

BILL.—“No, but seriously; that will never pass the Faculty. Miss Cunningham will be up in arms when she sees it.”

(A pause.)

BUSINESS MANAGER.—“Well, as I was going to say—”

DICK.—“If we were not afraid none of the Alumni would subscribe to the book, we might say something about how the Alumni were full of spirits after the Haverford game.”

FOGG.—“Worse and worse.”

JENKS.—“That’s a pretty rum joke, Dick.”

(Another pause.)

GAS.—“Did the Business Manager have anything to report?”

BUSINESS MANAGER.—“No.”

GAS.—“Well, I will—a—if there is no—any—”

DICK.—“Move that we adjourn.”

GILK.—“Seconded.”

GEORGIE.—“Walter always does second the artist, no matter who it is.”

GAS.—“It has been—a—moved and—m—m—on. The meeting is adjourned.”

(Exit the Staff simultaneously, with relieved minds.)

GILK.—“Has anybody a match?”

The Fate of All.

Poor old soul! How lonely he must be now! And in the days gone by all young life used to centre around him. He attracted the bright and happy, and sympathized with and befriended the sad and lonely. The youths worked under his direction, and many a success they won, over which he rejoiced with them. Even the maidens found his company pleasant, and the happy hours spent under his roof will be the fond remembrance of many an old Swarthmorean. But soon there came a change. The maidens ceased to care for his advice and teaching, and so left him.

The faithful youths tarried longer within his walls after their sisters went. Still his companionship was pleasant to them and they followed his bidding with unwearied steps. But, ah! among these, too, there soon arose murmurs of dissatisfaction. They thought newer methods than his would help them. And yet under his sway the Swarthmore youths won many a glorious victory. Long will they be remembered! But soon the inevitable came, and they, too, left him, for the old, alas! must needs give way to the young.

Bereft of his old companions, forgotten by those whom he befriended, now all that are left to him are some old horses for whom he cares most tenderly. May they be more faithful! Poor old Gym! Poor old Gym!

The Faculty in Collection.

---

It was 8.30 A. M.

The laundry bell slowly pealed out its warning to hurry to Collection or be late, and the Faculty gathered in great state on the rostrum in "the hall above." Each member supposed that the other was religiously inclined, but in reality such was the case with few. In fact, if they hadn't been thinking as they were thinking, the following might have been the thoughts of some of them:

DR. STINE (as he gazed over his spectacles toward the ceiling).—"Ah, the cracks in the plaster would seem to indicate that insufficient time was expended in calculating the bending moments of those beams. These rule-of-thumb men are certainly exasperating."

PROF. HOADLEY.—"I have always wanted to make a photograph of the earth, and now I believe my plans are perfected. Now I will take a balloon and—"

MISS NOWELL.—"Yes; I wish the mail came only once a week. It makes me late for this assembly nearly every morning. Two cents, please."

MR. HAVILAND.—"There are too many young ladies down there looking up in this direction. It embarrasses me, and I don't think I shall sit here any more."

DR. CUMMINGS.—"Co-education is a fine thing, no matter what some people may say, and I might just as well take advantage of it. Now, there's Miss—"

DR. APPLETON.—"Twelve minutes more to sit still! It's hard for me, but I'll do my best."

DR. DAY (musing with a nasal twang).—"Oh, if the students would only see the advantage of my method of thinking, I could guarantee $100 a month to each of them, when they leave. Now when I was a student, advantages like these were scarce," etc.

PROF. S. J. CUNNINGHAM.—"Well, some people seem to have no manners at all. Now just look at John Smith reading as hard as he can, while the President is talking. It does seem to me—"

Soon the Collection was over and the multitude dispersed, the Faculty feeling especially refreshed for the few moments of needed quiet.

"Scire Nefas."

"Seek ye not, for it is wrong to know
What end the gods may give to thee and me;
Nor yet attempt the Babylonian lore
Suffer whatever comes, Leuconöe.

"Whether a store of winters yet be thine,
Or this thy last, which hurls the Tuscan sea
Dashing its might in ever-beating waves
Against the rock-bound coast of Sicily.

"Be wise and drain the wine down to the dregs,
The days are swift, all hope of morrow's dawn
Forego. Live now! For even as we speak,
Our jealous youth steals past us and is gone."

Thus spake old Horace, Augustinian sage,
And after him the Persian Omar wrote
Words of like meaning, creed of unbelief,
Saved by its beauty from the past remote.

The Gi-raffe.

---

(A long time after Oliver Herford.)

I like the graceful, slim gi-raffe,
His rub-ber-neck doth make me laugh;
It rises to a height ab-surd
Just like the ea-gle, no-ble bird.
He brows-es in the pep-per trees
Without a pause to cough or sneeze,
And stamps a-bout with all his legs
To search for frag-ile tur-tle eggs.
In short, he shows such an-i-ma-tion,
As must com-pel our ap-pro-ba-tion;
So when we view his an-tics gay
"Ay, there's the rub-ber-neck," we say.

With Apologies to 1900 Halcyon.

I saw a young girl walking in her sleep. Two presents seemed to hover over her, and whispered, "Thy choice, gloves or powder."

The young girl sprinted recklessly in her sleep, and a slight snore escaped her, but she whispered, "Gloves."

The presents vanished.

Humanity is then full of nobility and sacrifice, for merchants do not trust, and gloves involve the giving of one's last cent to others—the regretting of self.

She cast one longing glance at powder. She was rubicund, and desired a good complexion.

The young girl wakened and applied her cream. She lived for others: for herself she dyed.

Take up the Hayman's Burden.

---

Take up the Hayman's burden,

For there he climbs in need.

Carry the letters quickly,

We want them ere we feed.

Or wait in anxious longing

'Mongst fluttered folk and wild;

While Johnny still is creeping,

Half angel and half child.

To Oure Swarthmore Choppes.

---

Oh, choppes of ye splendre luncheon tyme!
Of ye, forsooth, shul nouthe be min rym.
Our circumstances ben in thise gyse,
Lyk frendly Geffry Chaucer yow devyse.
"Repleccioun ne made hir nevere syk,
Attempree dyete was al hir phisyk."
So, litel pigges, graunt us now this boon,
Sin that ye knowen oure condicioun;
Nat to gete so tuff and run aboute,
But rest a whyle, to geten verray stout.
And this I pray unto your curtesye,
Beth tendre agayn, or elles mot we dye.

The Correspondent.

---

"Captain Farquhar ends his foot-ball career at Swarthmore in a most brilliant manner. In his last three games for the Garnet—namely, Dickinson, Haverford, and Franklin and Marshall—he has, by his fierce line-bucking and superb kicking, shown himself to be the best full-back and captain Swarthmore ever produced, as well as one of the best all-around full-backs on the gridiron of '99," etc.—R. B. F. in the Press, Dec. 3d, 1899.

If a Body.

If a body meet a Freshman
Hustling on to Math,
Need a body thrust his body
Straight in that one's path?

If a body meet a Soph'more
Starting out to haze,
Tell him not to be forgetful
Of his own green days.

If a body meet a Junior
Trying to kill time,
Bid him hurry on and help us
Write this Halcyon rhyme.

If a body meet a Senior
Passing down the Hall
Need he cut or stare at us?
Dear knows! "He's not so tall."

To an Oyster.

---

O most reserved of marine Lamellibranchs,
Grave mollusc of habits sedentary,
Blood-relation of the cheerful Anodon—
Likewise the Gastropod;

Thou who in this tureen reposest solitary,
Like the Vergilian ship, in gurgite vasto,
Far from thy native haunts and ostreoid companions,
What art thou, and whence?

Are we perchance sprung from a common ancestor,
After the theories of the school Darwinian?
Cousins, perhaps, in some degree of remoteness
Approximating the billions?

Nay, it must be; I feel a strange affinity,
A violent attraction quite inexplicable,
Moves me to cultivate our intimacy.
Come, most worthy bivalve!

Break, I pray thee, thy habitual silence,
Thy most weighty and sepulchral calm;
Speak in words of a prehistoric vernacular,
A Palæozoic dialect.

Tell me if in the mists of dim antiquity—
Fast to a rock of syenite formation,
Side by side in protoplasmic serenity
Dwelt our progenitors.

Spoke of the latest mode of pseudopodia
Box-pleated pellicles and cilia cut bias,
While around them swam in gentle meditation
Graceful Pterychthyses?

CAST.

ST. MARK, . . . . . a co-educator.
J. ENKS, . . . . . a would-be ditto.
D. LUKE, . . . . . a constable.

SCENE I. ROOM N, COLLEGE, AT 9.30 P. M. ALL DARK.

ST. MARK (raising side window, and giving low whistle). "Soft, she wakes."

J. ENKS (holding four fingers of right hand over his heart). "Ah, what bliss! How perfect this scheme of wireless telegraphy; in sooth, a gift of the gods. (A pause.) How now, my lord?"

ST. MARK (peering out). "All's well. Methinks I see a head at yonder window. Hold! 'tis but a shadow; drunk again. Nay, it comes nearer. Ah, 'tis now at yon close window, and—'tis she!"

THE HEAD (in a soft whisper). "Who is there?"

ST. MARK AND J. ENKS TOGETHER. "My lady, we have come to satisfy our craving for conversation, at the risk of the apprehension of the constable. To see you we would risk all things and endure all tortures."

THE HEAD. "Marry, my lords, cease your jolly-ing. I fear me, 'tis a false idea with which you stuff this poor head."

ST. MARK. "Nay, nay! I swear by the beard of my father, 'tis true. (Footsteps are heard in the hall.) Hist, some one comes! Fly, my lady, fly! We must not be seen or we will be discerned." (Head vanishes. J. ENKS, trembling, follows ST. MARK to the door on tiptoe. Both stumble over chairs and desks in the darkness.)

ST. MARK (opening the door). "Tarry, my liege; I will venture forth into the hall, thus to slay the destroyer of our happiness. Do you stay here till all is over." (Exit. J. ENKS still trembles.)

CURTAIN.

SCENE II.

(Third alcove, near Museum stairs. Enter D. LUKE from rear of stairway, carrying a box of matches and a huge club.)

D. LUKE (seizing ST. MARK by the collar). "Ah, at last I have thee, villain, in my power! Long have I wondered who thou mightest be, that should thus violate the laws; aye, but a moment more and your room should be lit up with my matches, thus to catch thee in the act."

ST. MARK (overcome). "Yes, thou hast found me out, and I am ready to die, but do me the favor to carry a note to my Lady Hilda, ere I perish."

D. LUKE. "As a last favor I will do this for thee, but now come with me to gaol."

ST. MARK. "To where?"

D. LUKE. "To Prex's office, stupid." (Leads him off by the car.)

(J. ENKS escapes, violently shaking, and muttering an unintelligible something about Thistle waiting and Marion's outlaws.)

Mr. Dooley at Swarthmore.

"I hear Dorgan has sint his b'y to Swatmore," said Mr. Dooley, as he provided liquid refreshment for his friend Hennessey.

"Yis," said Hennessey moodily, "he'll be an A. P. A. if he keeps on wid his advanced nosshuns. The b'y will come back shmokin' th' cigarette instid of th' pipe of his fathers."

"Ye say thrue," said Dooley; "th' insidshous cigarette is th' mark of th' effete Pie-belt. D'ye know what this Swatmore's like, Hennessey?"

"'Tis the spot where th' peaceful Quakers incullycate docthrines of non-resistance to mixed classes of byes and gurruls, half and half, aqually divided. They larn much but ate little. Young Dorgan wint there because they's great guns on foot-ball. Them as play foot-ball live high, Oi hear. They ate boiled eggs, where as how as th' ithers ate th' shells. 'Tis a great place," said Hennessey.

"Young Dorgan writ home on papur with a big Swatmore flag flutterin' over th' top most splendid. He says as how as two semiphores are larnin' him how t' get on the Freshmen crew by studhious application t' land rowin' wid golluf sticks for owers. He's a great b'y, this same on golluf, anyhow, he was born wid th' golluf color on his head."

"All's the same," said Hennessey, "I'd send no b'y o' mine there; it's little larnin' they do with all they gurruls around, for they'll lead a man to destr-ruccion, young or old, and half way back, them same gurruls."

"I dunno, I dunno," said Mr. Dooley, "I think, too, Dorgan was wrong in sendin' his b'y so far away. Altho' I voted for Carter Harrison, I believes in pathrunising home indushtries. Whin yung Dorgan wint in t' make his mark--his registrashun he calls it ('tis no politics, Hennessey)--the head boss cleared his throat, and he says, says he: 'How is thee?' he says. Young D. says: 'What?' 'How is thee?' says the boss, he says. 'How is the whut?' says D. 'What is thee name?' the boss says, says he. 'The name of what?' says D. Th' boss shoved a paper in his face and says, 'Sign this, young man.' Dorgan made his mark, and tuk his new pipe out of one pocket and a pack of cards out of th' other. 'Tek them,' he says, 'they's yours,' he says; 'the rest is in me thrunk,' he says, droppin' a tear.

"But three weeks he's been there now, and they are takin' of him and his mouth organ into th' College orchestra. He's a grand b'y—that young Dorgan; none better in th' land," said Mr. Dooley. "He's comin' back on speakin' terms wid all the 'ologies' and 'ophics,' and if he don't tek to partin' his hair' in th' middle, he'll lead the ward and die Chief of Police in Chicago."

Heard in Room D.

"Done, but not copied."

"All finished but two words."

"Left mine home on the piano."

"My face hurts and I can't read."

"I'd rather not read mine."

"Doctor says I have the pip and daren't read before company."

"I broke my pencil and had no knife."

"Have a frog in my throat."

"I'll explain to you after class."

St. George and the Dragon.

Einst ging ich nach dem Cherry-baum,
Als cherries waren ripe,
Dieselben zu appropriate—
Ich will's nicht nennen "swipe."

Und eine zeit lang da ich sass
Sehr froh in meiner soul,
Und gleich ein Vöglein cherries ass
Bis ich war very roll.

But was ist das? Ich hör ein Ton,
Jemand kommt, ich opine;
Es ist des Präsidenten Schritt—
Ich mache mich sehr klein.

Bald aber, "Wer ist das?" er fragt,
Mit voice so süß als jam.
Und brav und kühn antivorte ich,
" 'Tis I, G--rg- M-ch--l L-mb."

Oh, wouldn't it be amusing,
In these progressive years,
To see old Jupiter hit a rag
To the music of the spheres?

PUBLIC SALE.

THERE WILL BE OFFERED FOR SALE IN THE MANAGERS' PARLOR

AT ANY TIME ANY ONE IS EASY ENOUGH TO BUY THEM, THE FOLLOWING
QUANTITIES, TO WIT:

SMILING FOSSILS that adorn these walls. The room must be cleared, for pictures indicate too frivolous a spirit for a Quaker College; also the

SIX CHAIRS, as the room is small, and Caroline needs only the "pet."

MARBLE HAT RACK, in the southwest corner must be sold before it busts. As it uses cigarettes, will be sold at a sacrifice.

THAT COLOSSAL LAUGH, which reaches every nook of the College. On clear days may be heard from Coatesville to New Oxford, like the cHimes of a cow-bell. Worth much to others—nothing to us.

PET DWELLERS—Some remaining specimens of a noble race now nearly exterminated by Prex. and Lewis the Hunter. On exhibition any evening during Social Half-hour.

LUNCHES on co-operative plan. Hash daily—fried, boiled, stewed, panned, and fricasseed. Warranted to sharpen the appetite and wits.

DELPHIC—Well known for illiterary character. Consists of two meetings annually, and a banquet. Surpassing work done at the latter.

CAN OF WHITE PAINT—Might be profitably applied to color 1902 morals. Its durability has been tested on slate, wood, asphalt, and granite. Many behind the Barrs for fraudulent imitation. Particulars and testimonials furnished by The Lafayette.

MEREDITH, WEEK, JENKS—Fresh, green. Narrowly escaped destruction in a cow pasture. Will improve by keeping in a cool, secluded place.

PLAID APRON—Fine Spanish colors. Warranted not to crock or fade.

CHIROGRAPHY of a distinguished class. To be found on supper programmes of 1902.

BARN, previously known to the vulgar crowd as the "young men's gymnasium." Has also done service as skating rink, or "Crum up to date," storehouse for pianos, etc.

SCRUB OAKS—Slow growth, hard wood; for decorative purposes only.

FINE FRESH BLADES—Stock renewed each year.

SKELETON OF INDIAN—Previous incarnation of Baldbirdwin, sometime chief of the Catcutters, spoken of in E. T. Moore's noted book, Swarthmore Before the College. Valuable because of antiquity, but freshness well preserved.

GRAND CLEARING OUT.

FIGURE HEADS—Have stood four years' use. Must be sold at any loss. Brains only slightly worn. For physical condition see Class History of 1900, by General Debility, U. G. I., in this volume. To be sold in individual lots, as they do not work well together.

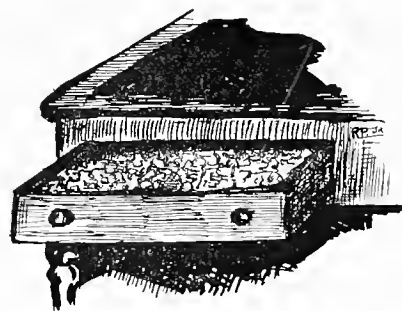

Terms for all sales—cold draughts on second sight.

HALCYON STAFF, Auctioneer.

With all due Apology to Paul Laurence Dunbar.

---

Dey is times in life when College
Makes you pine fo' home, sweet home,
When, yo' mornin' work all oveh,
Down through the hall you roam;
When yo' hungeh stahts a-gnawin',
An' you feel that achin' void,
An' de bell jes' den a-ringin'
Makes you think o' things enjoyed.
Den you dream ob all de dainties,
Dat you's wishin' fo' a lot,
An' de open do' discloses
Dat de Swarthmore hash am hot.

No, gentle reader, this is not the work of mice; it only represents ten minutes' co-education in the Reading Room.

November Dawn—A Sonnet.

When o'er the hill-top, clad with sombre pines,
Is dawning roseate the laggard day,
And to their feeding-grounds along the bay
The crows fly down the east in dusky lines—

When in some thicket dim of leafless vines
The wren doth trill his cheery roundelay,
And rhythmic ax-blows echo faint away,
Where, mist enwrapped, the upland forest shines ;

Then from the nestling farmsteads, far and near,
Thin, vaporous, and spirit-like, the smoke
Curls upward into heaven's rosy dome ;
Then fill the air all hearth-side perfumes dear—

Ascending prayers that silently invoke
The sky's beneficence upon the home.

---

She was a winsome little maid,
And conquered hearts galore ;
But one fine day they left, and then
She had to winsome more.

Why did the class of noughty-two
In holiday array,
Down by the steps wait patiently
One afternoon in May ?
Echo answers " Why ? "

Why did they slowly wend their way
At setting of the sun,
Up the long hill to the College
Sans picture and sans fun ?
Noughty-one knows why.

Why, for the Senior reception,
Were programs lacking, pray ?
Did they, in the open daylight,
Silently steal away ?
Echo answers " Why ? "

Was it love of honest labor
That made the Seniors bold
Spend the day in writing programs ?
The reason they've not told—
But noughty-three knows why.

1900—At Loss of Their Reception Programmes.

---

Soph'mores, we did not think to shed a tear
In all our miseries; but this has forc'd us,
Out of its irreverence, to show our anger.
Let's calm our passion, and thus far hear us, Soph'-
mores:

And—when we are forgotten, as we shall be,
And rest in dull oblivion, where no mention
Of us more may be heard of—say, we taught you;
Say, Seniors, who once tried the ways of athletes
And even made some bold attempts at dignity,
Sought you a way, out of their wreck, to rise in;
We hope a sure one, though your allies missed it.
Mark but our loss and that which caused it.
Soph'mores, we charge you, curb your curiosity;
By that sin our programmes went, just as did yours
Through carelessness and through too much security,

Look yourselves last; those Freshmen, too, have eyes,
And cowardice is not our rivals' sin.
In your right hands carry wary caution
To overcome their wiles; be watchful and have care.
Let all the ends you aim at be dignity's,
Your own, and ours; then if you fall, oh, Soph'mores!
You fall as we did: Serve your class
And teach us so to do.
There, take an inventory of all is ours,
To the last quality; 'tis yours; our pride,
And our own self-conceit is all
We dare now call our own. Oh, Soph'mores, Soph'-
mores!
Had we but served our class with half the zeal
We served ourselves, it would not in its age
Have been left helpless to those Freshmen there!

Mrs. Grant is very practical.

Her friend, Miss MacAllister, declared there were no Bon-Bons like ——'s at Soc.

Mrs. Grant thereupon spread a pound of Ackers 39c. on one plate and ——'s Soc. on another.

Names underneath.

"Of course, these are the best!" emphatically declared Miss MacAllister, after critically testing and comparing.

Then she looked for the name and found—"Ackers."

Many, besides Mrs. Grant, have tried the same entertaining experiment—with their friends.

Result generally the same.

4tc. a pound in the pocket of the buyer or 4tc. a pound extra in the pocket of the manufacturer.

That's the question—in a nutshell.

SWARTHMORE
Preparatory School,

SWARTHMORE, PA.

WHILE pupils of all denominations are made welcome, and their parents' religious preferences regarded, this is a Friends' School. True culture is the ideal in mental and moral guidance. Experience has proved co-education a refining and stimulating influence on both sexes. The school is equipped for earnest work, is remarkably healthful in all particulars, and enjoys many peculiar benefits from the vicinity of Swarthmore College. The usual College Preparatory and Academic courses.
Terms moderate.
